

Contributors to this Issue

Ambreen, Fatima

Fatima Ambreen received her Master in English Literature from the University of Kashmir, India, CELTA from Cambridge University and fellowship from the Academy of Higher Education, UK. She is currently working in Prince Sultan University, Saudi Arabia. Her research interests include second language acquisition and socio-linguistics. Action research in grammar classes is one of her prioritised research interest. Address for correspondence is: mail box 52, P.O. Box 53073 Riyadh 11586.

Chang, Yi-Ju

Yi-Ju Chang obtained her Master's degree in Teaching English as a Foreign Language (TEFL) from the Department of English Instruction, University of Taipei, Taipei, Taiwan. She is an English teacher at an elementary school in Taoyuan City, Taiwan.

Choi, Heejae

Heejae Choi is currently an Assistant Professor in the Department of French Education, Hankuk University of Foreign Studies in Korea. Her teaching and research interests include foreign language education policy, plurilingual education, cross-linguistic influence, and the action-oriented approach. She has published articles in several journals including Les Langues Modernes (an academic journal of the French Association of Language Professors).

El-Dakhs, Dina A. S.

Dina A. S. El-Dakhs received her PhD in Linguistics from Alexandria University, Egypt, and is currently Assistant Professor at Prince Sultan University, Saudi Arabia. Her research interests include Second Language Acquisition and Instruction, Psycholinguistics, Pragmatics and Discourse Analysis. She has published several articles in reputed journals. Address for correspondence: Department of Linguistics, College of Humanities, Prince Sultan University, P.O. Box No.66833 Rafka Street, Riyadh 11586 Saudi Arabia. Email: ddakhs@psu.edu.sa.

Lin, Wen-Ying

Wen-Ying Lin is an Associate Professor of the Department of English Instruction, University of Taipei, Taipei, Taiwan (ROC). She obtained her Ph.D. in quantitative methods from the University of Florida, USA. Her research interests include English language assessment, applied statistics, quantitative methods in education. She has published research papers in such academic journals as Curriculum and Instruction, Educational Research International, Psychological Testing.

Liswaniso, Belden

Belden Liswaniso is a Lecturer in the Department of Education in Languages, Humanities and Commerce at the University of Namibia, Katima Mulilo Campus. He is a teacher educator and has facilitated several workshops for in-service teachers in language teaching. He holds a Master's degree in Applied Linguistics from the University of South Africa and he is currently pursuing a PhD in Linguistics. His main areas of expertise are in reading, comprehension and vocabulary development.

Love, Mark

Mark Love, Ph.D. (University of Sheffield), has been working in the field of TEFL for over 20 years and teaching in the TESOL-MALL Graduate Program at Woosong University for the past 11 years. He has published articles and book chapters at the international level in the areas of curriculum studies, critical ELT practices, and teaching with technology (video games), and has a forthcoming chapter on new materialism and education.

Petchkij, Worawanna

Worawanna Petchkij is currently an Assistant Professor at the Center for Thai as a Foreign Language (CTFL), Faculty of Arts, Chulalongkorn University, Bangkok, Thailand. She received her PhD in Linguistics in 2008 from the Department of Linguistics, Chulalongkorn University. She has more than 10 years' experience in teaching English as a foreign language at Chulalongkorn University Language Institute. Her research interests include pragmatics, conceptual metaphors, academic writing, and foreign language teaching and learning.

Reilly, Peter

Peter Reilly earned his Ed.D in Higher Education and his M.A. in TESOL. He is also a certified Gestalt psychologist. He has worked as an English teacher and teacher trainer in Mexico for 30 years. He currently teaches TOEFL preparation at the Universidad Panamericana in Aguascalientes, Mexico.

Sánchez Rosas, Javier

Javier Sánchez Rosas earned his Ph.D. in Psychology and currently works at the Laboratory of Psychological and Educational Evaluation, Faculty of Psychology, National University of Cordoba, Argentina. His research interests include: achievement emotions and motivation, self-regulation, educational assessment, and instructional quality.

Sato, Rintaro

Rintaro Sato is Professor at Nara University of Education in Japan. He received a Master's degree from Tsukuba University and earned his Ph.D. in Education at Hyogo University of Teacher Education. His research interests are intake and output processing, feedback, negotiation of meaning and gestures/nonverbal behaviors in EFL classrooms. In addition, he is interested in incorporating theories of second language acquisition into the Japanese EFL classroom.

Sew, Jyh Wee

Jyh Wee Sew teaches Malay at the Centre for Language Studies, National University of Singapore, since 2007. He is an editor of Electronic Journal of Foreign Language Teaching, and an International Advisory Board member of Malaysian Journal of Communication. He has published several books; and many articles on Malay pedagogy in GEMA Online@ Journal of Language Studies, Kajian Malaysia, Akademika, Issues in Language Studies, WORD, among others. He is a recipient of the AUA (Asian Universities Alliance) Scholar Award for 2019–2020.

Sitali-Mubanga, Georgina Nandila

Georgina Nandila Sitali-Mubanga is a Lecturer at Kwame Nkrumah University, Zambia. She has taught at the University of Namibia where she mentored three junior lecturers, taught at Charles Lwanga College of Education, and tutored at the University of Zambia. She holds an MA in Linguistic Science from the University of Zambia and is finalising her PhD at the University of Dar-es-Salaam in Tanzania. Her area of expertise is Linguistic Science and Literacy and Learning. She has presented a number of papers in South Africa, Zambia and Namibia.

Sumiyoshi, Hideki

Hideki Sumiyoshi is a member of the teaching staff in the Japanese Studies Department at Macquarie University, where he has taught Japanese language units at all levels from introductory to advanced level since 2011. He recently completed a PhD at the same University, and the thesis explored the effect of shadowing in the areas of listening and speaking, and L2 learners' perceived motivation towards the new practice. His research interests include Japanese language pedagogy, learners' motivation, and autonomy.

Waluyo, Budi

Budi Waluyo is a full-time Lecturer at Walailak University Language Institute, Thailand. He earned his M.A. in Educational Technology and TESOL from the University of Manchester, UK, and his Ph.D. in Comparative and International Education from Lehigh University, USA. His research interests involve education policy, educational technology, English language teaching, and international education.

Widodo, Handoyo Puji

Handoyo Puji Widodo is a former Associate Professor at the English Language Center (ELC) at Shantou University, and he is currently affiliated with King Abdulaziz University (KAU) based in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia. Widodo has taught English in China, Indonesia, and the USA. He has published extensively in refereed journals and edited volumes. His areas of specialization include language teaching methodology, language curriculum and materials development, systemic functional linguistics (SFL) in language education, and teacher professional development. His work has been grounded in sociosemiotic, sociocognitive, sociocultural and critical theories of language pedagogies. Email: handoyopw@yahoo.com

Zaheer, Maria

Maria Zaheer received her Master in Applied Linguistics from the University of Central Lancashire, UK, with additional qualifications of TESOL and PTTLS. She is currently a Lecturer at Prince Sultan University and her research interests include digital teaching and innovative learning. Her recent publication is "The Effects of Form-Focused Instruction on the Learners' Accuracy of Written Production" (2014, AWEJ). She is also the recipient of multiple awards for her research in teaching methods and development workshops. Address for correspondence: Deanship of Educational Services, P.O. Box No. 66833, Riyadh 11586 KSA. Email: marszaheer@hotmail.com