

<http://e-flt.nus.edu.sg/>

Electronic Journal of Foreign Language Teaching
2005, Vol. 2, No. 2, pp. 79-80
© Centre for Language Studies
National University of Singapore

Contributors to this issue

Bärenfänger, Olaf

Olaf Bärenfänger (M.A., University of Heidelberg, Germany; Ph.D., University of Bielefeld, Germany) is Deputy Director of the Language Center at the University of Leipzig, Germany. His research interests include e-learning, second language acquisition research, quality management, research methodology, and language testing. He has lectured in both North and South America, Europe and East Asia. Dr. Bärenfänger is currently implementing a hybrid learning strategy at the University of Leipzig.

Hong, Myung-Soon

Myung-Soon Hong is professor at the Korea Advanced Institute of Science and Technology, Daejeon, South Korea. She holds a Ph.D. in German literature and teaches German as a Second/Foreign Language. Her current research interests include foreign language teaching and learning, and German Studies.

Li, Jingquan

Jingquan Li, Teaching Assistant, is currently a doctoral student studying and working in the English Department of the PLA University of Foreign Languages, Luoyang, Henan Province, P. R. China. His main investigative interests are second language acquisition, corpus linguistics, pragmatics, English language teaching, and has published several papers in these fields.

Min, Hyang-Ki

Hyang-Ki Min is a lecturer at Goethe-Institut Seoul and teaches at various universities in South Korea. She obtained her PhD in German as Foreign Language in 2000 from the University of Kassel in Germany. She specializes in the development of teaching materials. She is active in research in the Teaching and Learning of German as Foreign Language.

Suzuki, Ryoko

Ryoko Suzuki is an Associate Professor at the Faculty and Graduate School of Economics of Keio University, Japan. She received her B.A. and M.A. (English Literature, Japan Women's University; General Linguistics, University of Southern California) and Ph.D. (Linguistics) from University of California, Santa Barbara.

Her research interests include discourse analysis, historical pragmatics and spoken Japanese.

Tomlinson, Brian

Brian Tomlinson is the Founder and President of MATSDA (the Materials Development Association) and the Head of the Post-Graduate, Research and Consultancy Team in the School of languages at Leeds Metropolitan University. He has worked in Africa and Asia (including Indonesia, Japan and Malaysia), has given conference presentations in over sixty countries and has published numerous articles and books (including “Discover English”, “Openings”, “Materials Development in Language Teaching” and “Developing Materials for Language Teaching”).

Yanagisawa, Miwako

Miwako Yanagisawa is Associate Professor at Tokyo Christian University, Chiba, Japan, where she has been on the faculty since 2000. She was awarded her Ph.D. in East Asian Languages and Literatures (Japanese) from the University of Hawai'i at Manoa in December, 2004. The title of the dissertation is “Exploring Social Identity: Analyzing Japanese-speaking Christians' Testimonies.” Her current research interests include discourse analysis, language socialization, and language pedagogy.

Zareva, Alla

Alla Zareva is now an Assistant Professor of linguistics in the Faculty of Humanities at Bourgas Free University (Bulgaria). She has also taught in the Linguistics Program at The University of Georgia (U.S.) and the Applied Linguistics Program at Northern Arizona University (U.S.). Her main interests are in second language (L2) issues – in particular, the structure of the mental lexicon of speakers of more than one language, qualitative and quantitative features of their lexical organization, genre characteristics and information packaging of L2 academic presentations, as well as testing at the higher levels of proficiency.