

Contributors to this issue

Chen, Fred Jyun-Gwang

Dr. Fred Jyun-Gwang Chen received his M.A. in linguistics at Northwestern University, and Ph.D. in Educational Linguistics at the University of Pennsylvania. Currently, he is an associate professor in the Graduate Institute of Teaching Chinese as a Second Language at National Taiwan Normal University, Taipei, Taiwan. His research interests include Chinese linguistics and pedagogy, contrastive study of English and Chinese, discourse analysis, second language acquisition, and psycholinguistics.

Hsu, Jeng-yih

Jeng-yih Hsu is an Assistant Professor at the Department of English, National Kaohsiung First University of Science and Technology, Kaohsiung, Taiwan. He received his Master in English Language and Linguistics from the University of Arizona, and holds a doctorate in Composition and TESOL from Indiana University of Pennsylvania. His teaching and research interests include TESOL methodology, EFL/ESL materials design, business writing, and ESOL teacher training. His current focus is on English collocations.

Istanto, Johanna Wulansari

Johanna W. Istanto is Convenor of the Bahasa Indonesia Programme at the Centre for Language Studies, Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, National University of Singapore, since 2003. She coordinates the teaching and learning process for all the undergraduate modules, ranging from elementary to advanced levels. She is also involved in the development of the Bahasa Indonesia Program courseware, which can be viewed at <http://courseware.nus.edu.sg/IM@BIP>. Prior to joining NUS, she taught Bahasa Indonesia as a second/foreign language in Japan, Indonesia and at a polytechnic in Singapore.

Khanthuan, Walee

Walee Khanthuan is an Assistant Professor at the Department of Thai Language, Khon Kaen University (KKU), Thailand. She holds a B.A. (Kasetsart University) in Thai Literature and an M.A. (Chulalongkorn University) in Journalism. Her experience includes working as a Reporter at Khao Sod Newspaper, Consultant to Vice President for Administration Affairs of Khon Kaen University, Communication Specialist at the Changwat Action Plan for Environmental Quality Management Project (CAPEQM) and Coordinator for Teaching Thai as a Foreign Language Program at KKU. Her interest is in communication culture.

Müller, Mareike

Mareike Müller, M.A. (University of Jena, Germany) is currently PhD candidate and research/teaching assistant at the Department of Germanic and Slavic Studies at the University of Waterloo, Canada. Her research interests are in the theoretical foundations and practical employment of pronunciation training in foreign language classes, the potential of nonverbal communication in intercultural learning environments as well as the development of childhood and youth bilingualism.

Phạm, Hồng Nhung

Hồng Nhung Phạm teaches English, British/American culture/literature, and intercultural communication at Hue College of Foreign Language, Hue University, Vietnam. She received her MA in applied linguistics from the University of Queensland, Australia in 2002 and has been pursuing her PhD in intercultural communication at the same university since 2005. Her current research interests include English teaching pedagogy and intercultural communication.

Quek, Soh Theng

Soh Theng Quek has had fifteen years' experience as an English language instructor in a primary school in Kuala Terengganu, Malaysia. She received her MA in Applied Linguistics from Universiti Putra Malaysia. Her research interest is in the area of second language acquisition.

Wong, Bee Eng

Bee Eng Wong is an Associate Professor at the Department of English of Universiti Putra Malaysia. She received her Ph.D. in linguistics from the University of Essex, UK. She teaches courses in linguistics and applied linguistics. Her main research interests are syntactic and vocabulary development in second language acquisition, and second language assessment. She has published (some in collaboration with colleagues) articles on second language acquisition and second language assessment in local and international journals, books and conference proceedings.