

<http://e-flt.nus.edu.sg/>

Electronic Journal of Foreign Language Teaching
2010, Vol. 7, No. 1, pp. 100–102
© Centre for Language Studies
National University of Singapore

Contributors to this Issue

Breckenridge, Yvonne

Yvonne Breckenridge is a Doctoral Candidate in the Department of Secondary Education and an Instructor in the English Language Program at the University of Alberta. Her research focuses on professional development and second language acquisition from a critical applied linguistic perspective.

Cambre, Maria-Carolina

Maria-Carolina Cambre is a Doctoral Candidate in the Department of Educational Policy Studies, University of Alberta, specializing in theoretical, cultural, and international studies. Her research interests include visual communication and phenomenological semiotics, ethics and social justice in education, and indigenous epistemologies.

Gomez, Julio César

Julio César Gómez holds a Master of Arts in Secondary Education from the University of Alabama. He has more than 12 years teaching experience with the Universidad Externado de Colombia, Pedagógica Nacional and the Centro Colombo Americano. He has been Academic Coordinator for 7 years with the Fundación para la Promoción y Difusión del Inglés. His academic interests include critical thinking, reading, teachers' supervision and management.

Hashimoto, Hiroko

Dr Hiroko Hashimoto is a lecturer in the Japanese Studies Program at the School of Languages, Culture and Linguistics at Monash University, Australia. Her research interests include the internationalisation of universities, studying abroad, and intercultural communication. She is a NAATI (National Accreditation Authority for Translators and Interpreters) accredited Professional Translator.

Khamkhien, Attapol

Attapol Khamkhien is a lecturer at the Faculty of Liberal Arts and Science, Kasetsart University, Thailand. He received a Master degree in English as an International Language (EIL) from Chulalongkorn University. His main interests include language learning styles and strategies, English as an international language and academic writing. He may be reached at faasapk@ku.ac.th.

Kitiarsa, Chi Rungnapa

Chi Rungnapa Kitiarsa is a part-time lecturer in the Thai language program at the Centre for Language Studies, Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, National University of Singapore. She holds an M.A. (TESOL) from University of Washington, Seattle, USA, where she also worked as teaching assistant for Thai Language at the Department of Asian Languages and Literature. Before moving to Singapore in 2005, she was a lecturer in English at Suranaree University of Technology, Nakhon Ratchasima, Thailand. Email: rungskiti@yahoo.com.

Lip, Paul Chi Hong

Paul Chi Hong Lip is a lecturer at Caritas Institute for Further & Adult Education – Kowloon. He holds a bachelor's degree in Teaching English as a Second Language from City University of Hong Kong and a master's degree in Applied Linguistics from the University of Hong Kong. He has presented at a number of international conferences and published in conference proceedings and international journals in computer-assisted language learning, and classroom-based language teaching and learning.

Nikitina, Larisa

Dr. Larisa Nikitina (B.A., M.A.) is a lecturer at Universiti Malaysia Sabah where she teaches the Russian language. Her current research interests include language pedagogy, the affective aspects of language learning, and teacher-student interaction.

Platzer, Hans

Hans Platzer received his Ph.D. in English historical linguistics from the University of Vienna and is currently senior lecturer at the University of Applied Sciences in Wiener Neustadt (Austria). Apart from historical linguistics, his research interests include corpus linguistics and ESP.

Plews, John L.

John L. Plews is an Assistant Professor of German at Saint Mary's University, Halifax, NS. He currently researches second language curriculum and international education for language learners and teachers, focusing especially on identity and voice. He has also published on aspects of German culture.

Prathoomthin, Adisorn

Adisorn Prathoomthin is a Thai part-time teacher at the Centre for Language Studies of the National University of Singapore (NUS). He has been teaching Thai to students at various proficiency levels since 2003. Mr. Prathoomthin is currently pursuing his Master's degree in Thai Language Teaching at the Faculty of Education, Chiang Mai University, Thailand. His research interests are in the development of teaching materials and foreign language teaching methodology. Email: adisorn1976@yahoo.com.

Ruangpanyapot, Weena

Weena Ruangpanyapot has been teaching Thai Language to students at the Centre for Language Studies of the National University of Singapore (NUS) for more than 11 years. She received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Thammasat University in Thailand and a Master of Business Administration (MBA) degree from the University of Wisconsin, Whitewater. Email: weena_ruang@yahoo.com.

Suwanna, Chuanromanee

Chuanromanee Suwanna has been a part-time Thai language tutor at the Centre for Language Studies, NUS, since 1999. She received her Bachelor of Arts degree in Journalism from Thammasat University, and graduated from The Wichita State University, U.S.A., with a Master's degree in Communications. Email: noo@storeengine.com.

Takimoto, Masato

Dr. Masato Takimoto lectures in the Japanese Studies Program, as well as in the Translation & Interpreting Studies Program, at the School of Languages, Cultures and Linguistics, Monash University, Australia. His research interests include intercultural communication, interpreting and translation pedagogy, and content-based foreign language teaching. He is a NAATI (National Accreditation Authority for Translators and Interpreters) accredited Conference Interpreter/Advanced Professional Translator.