

<http://e-flt.nus.edu.sg/>

Electronic Journal of Foreign Language Teaching
2007, Vol. 4, No. 1, pp. 165–166
© Centre for Language Studies
National University of Singapore

Contributors to this Issue

Christopher, Storey

Christopher Storey, MBA, teaches English communication and presentation at The University of Kitakyushu, Japan. He is currently studying for a PhD in Applied Linguistics with the University of Birmingham in the area of business English and curriculum development, and aims to systematically develop an elective course for students in the faculty where he works. His other interests include materials development, second-language reading and CALL. He is the author/co-author of three English teaching textbooks related to communication and presentation.

Döpel, Martin G.

Martin G. Döpel is a German Language Lecturer at the Centre for Language Studies, National University of Singapore. He received his M.A. from the University of Jena in 2004. His interests are in neuroscientific aspects of second language acquisition and the use of Web 2.0 applications in the foreign language classroom.

Huang, Yueh-Kuey

Yueh-Kuey Huang is an Associate Professor at the Department of English of Tamkang University in Taiwan. She received her Ph.D. from Texas A&M University, USA. She has been involved in promoting Taiwanese learners' literacy development by carrying out a number of projects funded by the government. She is also experienced in working on teaching and research projects in conjunction with other teacher researchers. Her expertise lies in applied linguistics, specifically sociolinguistics, L2 acquisition, learning strategies, teaching pedagogy, and ESL/EFL reading/writing research.

Ketabi, Saeed

Saeed Ketabi, PhD in Applied Linguistics from the University of Cambridge, England, is currently teaching various ELT courses at graduate levels at the Department of English, Faculty of Foreign Languages, University of Isfahan, Iran. He has published and presented papers in his field.

Liu, Jinghui Jack

Jack Jinghui Liu received his doctorate in foreign language education from Purdue University and is an Assistant Professor and coordinator of Chinese program in the Department of Modern Languages and Literatures at California State University, Fullerton. He played a major role in development of Chinese language and culture curriculum for the Indiana Department of Education. His current research interests include Chinese language teaching and international education.

Ohm, Udo

Udo Ohm (Ph.D., University of Kassel, Germany) is assistant professor at the Friedrich-Schiller-University Jena, Germany. His research interests include e-learning, research methodology, and second language acquisition research. Related to the last area is his ongoing postdoctoral thesis on “Second Language Acquisition in Terms of Autobiographic Narratives”.

Shen, Ming-Yueh

Ming-Yueh Shen is an Associate Professor at the Department of Applied Foreign Languages of National Formosa University in Taiwan, where she has been a faculty member since 1994. She received her M.A. in TESOL from Michigan State University and holds a Ph.D. in TESOL from Tamkang University, Taiwan, completed in 2005. Her research interests include developing reading/writing literacy for EFL learners, vocabulary acquisition, learner autonomy, reading strategies instruction, and language pedagogy.

Shomoossi, Nematullah

Nematullah Shomoossi, PhD candidate in Applied Linguistics at the University of Isfahan, Iran, is the coordinator of English programs at Sabzevar School of Medical Sciences. He is involved in teaching English as well as research in language policy, learner strategies and distance education.

Wu, Weiping

Dr. Wu Weiping is Director of the Chinese Language Center at CUHK in Hong Kong. His professional experience includes working as a Research Associate at CAL (Washington DC) and a Senior Testing Specialist at SLTI (Maryland), teaching at universities, conducting teacher training workshops and managing various test development projects.